Exposition Official.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.-Mr. C. J. Juman Danfelt, Commissioner General for Sweden to the Centennial Exhibition, arrived by the steamer Illinois to-day, and will make his residence in this city until the close of the Exposition.

Serious Explosion.

DETROIT, Nov. 11.-Yesterday afternoon a large hot-air box in the Pullman Car Works exploded, and Louis Meyer, John Luvelt, Julius Schultz, and three or four others, are supposed to be fatally wounded, while a dozen or more others were seriously hurt.

Virginia's Defaulting Treasurer.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 11.-Ex-Treasurer Colonel Joseph Mayo, Jr., was today discharged from custody, the Court of Inquiry having adjudged him insane at the time of the defection and insane now. It is not probable that he will be sent back to the asylum, as he is the charge of friends who will give him all necessary attention.

Election Observations.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.-Further returns from Wisconsin leave little doubt that Ludington's majority for Governor will reach 1,000, but the chances for any of the rest of the candidates on the Republican ticket are very slim, although Warner may pull through. The defeat of the Republican candidates is attributed to a loss of votes through the temperance ticket, which drew from the Republican strength.

The official canvass in this city is still incomplete, though no change in the result is anticipated.

Items from Old Ross.

Special to the Star.

The blooded mare Flora, which was supposed to have been stolen from the Kojukinokt stables, was found on an adjoining farm, where she had strayed.

In and About St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 11.-The Missouri State Centennial Committee have resolved to erect a fine building in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, in which to exhibit the products of Missouri at the Centennial next year. The building will be of Missouri stone and glass, and be arranged so as not only to make a fine display of articles exhibited, but serve as the headquarters of officials, committeemen, &c., during the exhibition.

The National Railroad Convention at St. Louis promises to be remarkably interesting and well attended.

The Kansas and Missouri bridge, spanning the Missouri river at Leavenworth, has been placed in the hands of a receiver.

Ohio concur in it, so far as to consent to uniform rates and a reduction of expenses.

Information was received to-day by the General Agent in this city for the Illinois Central Railroad of the existence of an extensive system of forgery upon that company of a number of coupons, pretending to be issued by the company for passage between Chicago and Denver City. The tickets have been offered for sale here, and it is believed that the forgers have made New York their place of operations. The police are on the track of the forgers.

Leonard Cox, cashier of the Western Union Telegraph Company, is a defaulter, to the extent of $13,000. Stock speculations did it for him.

The Lost Steamer City of Waco.

GALESTON, TEXAS, Nov. 11.-The steamer Buckhorn was dispatched outside at 3 yesterday in search of the missing passengers and crew of the City of Waco. She will cruise west sixty miles along the coast before returning. Capt. J. U. Sawyer, agent of the Mallory line, also started out on board of one of his pilot boats in search of the missing boats. The only hopes for the safety of the passengers and crew are based on the statement of Captain Jadin, of the steamer Buckhorn, who saw a foremast while out yesterday.

The report says the end of the mast was burned off apparently between the decks, or very close below the floor or upper deck, which indicates that the fire was below decks, in which case the fire may have been burning for some time and given the officers, crew and passengers ample time to have left the ship before the flames reached the upper decks and were discovered by other vessels. It is thought the passengers and crew may have escaped in the darkness on board of the ship's small boats before the fire on board was seen from the Pusanuy and Steamship San Marcos.

In this event they would have drifted with the sea about thirty or forty miles westward before the wind changed to the northwest. Another statement, which would appear to confirm the location of the fire, is that the City of Waco had a small wooden case, or house, built around her foremast, wherein matches, &c., were stored. This casing reached up, on the mast, four feet; and above the top of it the mast was grained, while below it was only painted white. The deck was evidently burned off below the casing.

On the upper deck forward large quantities of oil were stored, and as soon as the flames reached this the entire upper portion of the vessel was swept by the flames. Nothing wrong was discovered with the unfortunate ship until she was seen wrapped in a sheet of flame. Nothing was seen of her boats and passengers or crew.

The officers of the San Marcos, a steamship lying in the fleet, state that the fire was first discovered about two o'clock.

The return of the pilot-boat and the steamer are anxiously looked for. It is thought they will be in this morning.

All the members were present except Bishops Foster and Haven. The Secretaries presented their budget of appropriations for the coming year. Considerable discussion followed on the subject, and motions to make the aggregate appropriations $750,000 and $650,000 were lost. A motion was then made to make it $600,000, the same as last year, and after a lengthy discussion a recess was taken without any action.

Foreign News.

THE BRITISH PROVINCES.

OTTAWA, ONT., Nov. 11.-Reports of a horrible murder last night have reached the police station. A woman named Munroe called and said she sent a boy named Smith to Janeville from the city, in company with a girl named Mary Henderson. The boy returned at a late hour last night, and told her that while coming across Cummings bridge two men seized the girl, tied a rope around her neck, then threw her into the Rideau river, and threatened to kill Smith if he ever mentioned the affair. Smith says one of the men is named Vieker.

GUELPH, ONT., Nov. 11.-White, convicted last week for the murder of his wife, made a confession lately. He said he hit her on the head with a stick, when she fell and said: "Oh, Henry, you have killed me." The prisoner said: "Will you please tell me again as you have done?" She said: "No, Henry, I won't." The prisoner said, "Yes you will," and struck her on the head again repeatedly. She groaned, but did not articulate anything distinctly. The prisoner picked her up. As he did so she breathed heavily. He carried her to the well and threw her heavily into it, head downward, and afterward threw a pile into the well, with a view to make people think she had fallen in.

Origin of the Term "Brother Jonathan."

The story of the origin of the above term, as related many years ago to the editor of the Norwich Courier by a gentleman over eighty years of age, who was an active participant in the scenes of the Revolution, is as follows:

"When General Washington, after being appointed Commander of the Army of the Revolutionary War, came to Massachusetts to organize it and make preparations for the defense of the country, he found a great want of ammunition and other means necessary to meet the powerful foe he had to contend with, and great difficulty to obtain them. If attacked in such condition, the cause at once might be hopeless. On one occasion, at that anxious period, a consultation of the officers and others was held, when it seemed no way could be devised to make such preparation as was needed."

His Excellency Jonathan Trumbull, the elder, was then Governor of the State of Connecticut, on whose judgment and aid the General placed the greatest reliance, and remarked, "We must consult Brother Jonathan on the subject." The General did so, and the Governor was successful in supplying many of the wants of the army. When difficulties afterward rose, and the army was spread over the country, it became a by-word! "We must consult Brother Jonathan." The term "Yankee" is still applied to a portion, but "Brother Jonathan" has now become a designation of the whole country, as "John Bull" has for England."

Woman's Suffrage.

A woman at Medicine Bow, just as she was depositing her vote last election day, was surprised to hear a rough sing out:

"I challenge that woman's vote."

"On what grounds, sir?"

"She hasn't been long enough in the Territory."

Did the woman sit down and cry over it? It is not to be recorded. Her dainty little hand glided back into the folds of her pullover, and the next thing that audacious cuss knew he was gazing into the muzzle of a Derringer, while the fair voter said:

"How long have I been in the Territory, sir?"

"Look out, madam-don't. That cussed thing might go off-take it away; I beg your pardon; I don't touch that trigger-I-I'm mistaken in the woman."

Please point that the other way. I'll kick the lyn' sheep thief that says you haven't lived right here in this town for ten years. I swear I will."

He scooted round the corner, and she smilingly passed in her ticket.-From the Wyoming Herald.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cadz Stanton has lectured in Chicago on Greeley, Seward and Weed. She estimated Weed as the greatest of American politicians, Seward as the greatest diplomat, and Greeley as the greatest editor. She incidentally told this story: "I once attended a very fashionable party at John C. Fremont's, where Greeley invited me to take his arm to dinner. I said, 'Wait, Mr. Greeley, till after the guests are out. I want to say something to you.' And when the guests were out of the room, I set to work to tie his cravat, arrange his collar, comb his hair, and even to tie his shoe, saying, 'Mr. Greeley, why is it that you, such a handsome man, are so careless about your dress?' His reply was, 'Handsome is that handsome does.'"

The founder and editor of one of the great London periodicals never wrote a line therein, and when he died his death was not mentioned in it.

The Race-Street Murder.

The inquest on the body of Cole was begun in the Coroner's office this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Several witnesses were sworn, the most important of whom was Omer L. Pearce, the friend of the deceased, who testified as follows:

Omer L. Pearce, railroad conductor, next sworn-Have known the deceased four or five years. He was not an habitual drunkard, though he did sometimes get on a spree. He was a little nervous under the influence of liquor. Went in company with the deceased to 183 Race street. He said that he wanted to play some; that with five dollars he could win fifty. There was a man betting behind a table, a crowd of about him. This man seemed to know Cole, and said, "Jim, sit down." He would not do it, and I then started with him to the door, which was open. I got him outside the door, when we met Duncan, the colored man-the prisoner-Cole wanted to go back, but Duncan would not let him back. I said, "Jim, come on, let's go down stairs." I started down then; he was coming after me; as I stepped outside the front door I heard a noise, and thought Cole was falling down stairs; looked back and saw Jim and the colored man elbowed; coming down the steps they struck against the door and slammed it. I asked what was the matter; the colored boy said, "He is going to hurt me." I said, "No he won't;" held Jim and told the boy to go up stairs; the boy went up to the door, shut it, and then came out again; Jim and I were standing inside the door down stairs; the boy stood at the head of the stairs with a stick in his hand; Jim started up stairs; I told him not to go, but he kept on, and when about two-thirds of the way up the negro stepped back into the door; I then started up after Jim; just as I turned the corner of the railing at the head of the stairs the colored man, and Mr. Leary and Jim were standing there; Leary told the colored boy not to strike him; then the negro struck him over the head
